

The Shap working party on World Religions in Education

Jim Robinson

I came to join the Shap working Party at the suggestion of Peggy Morgan with my specialities in Hinduism (I had done my DPhil at Oxford based on research on the Hindu community in Bengal and the UK) and Buddhism (with contacts amongst the Buddhist community in the UK and my own background in India where I was born and grew up).

My richest memories were the meetings in London and meeting members of the Shap Working Party including Rabbi Hugo Gryn who gave me deeper insights into the lived experience of Jews in the diaspora.

My major contributions to Shap were working on the Shap Journal including the articles that wrote for it.
